Stuffed Animals

TOY TIPS: Consider size as you choose a stuffed animal for a particular child. Infants and toddlers like to hug and play with cuddly stuffed animals and can be overwhelmed by extra-large ones. Older children, especially teens, love the giant stuffed animals and often use them as room decorations. See page 403 for more on choosing toys.

Bike Size Note

How To Find Your Leg Length:

To determine leg length of rider, measure distance from crotch to ground while rider is wearing shoes normally worn when cycling. The minimum leg length for each bike is the distance from the floor to the top bar, plus one inch clearance. For pedaling comfort, seats and handlebars are adjustable on all our bikes.

All bikes on this page are not fully assembled—see assembly note on page 538. All are warranted by manufacturer—write for copy, see page 387

WATCHES AND CLOCKS

TIME TIPS: Children like to learn how to tell time. They can usually start at about age two with a giant colorful clock. By age six, most children want a wristwatch. For young children, look for a watch face with large, easy-to-read numbers. Digital watches are best for children who already know how to read a clock accurately.

TOY TIPS: Racing cars are a favorite for preschool and older children. Compare the number of parts in a set and the time needed to set up the cars and tracks. Younger children like to set up the tracks by themselves and "drive" the cars. Older children enjoy the complex racing systems and racing competitions. See page 403 for more on choosing toys

Kiss Ano

Twenty years ago Bertram interiors had all the warmth and style of a men's club shower room.

In our passion to produce the world's most ruggedly functional, softest riding, Nureyev-nimble pleasure boats, we treated decor somewhat cavalierly. Sometimes not even somewhat.

My, how times change.

ther Myth Goodbye.

Today standard fabric colors at Bertram include peach sherbet, teal, claret, indigo, cerulean and two dozen more choices beside good old beige and blue. Mostly natural fibers instead of plastic pretenders. And last year alone we used over 400,000 board feet of Asian teak, book-matched in sequence to Bertram specifications.

The photo shows the new salon decor of the 42' Convertible. In fact every one of Bertram's 16 models has had a major decor upgrade in the past two years. And our customizing department makes the options virtually limitless.

So if you see a Bertram that looks familiar on the outside, better check out the inside. (After all, just 'cause you're built like Tarzan doesn't mean you have to dress like him.)

See your nearby Bertram dealer and find out why the sun never sets on the Bertram empire. Or write Bertram Yacht, 3661 NW 21st Street, Miami, Florida 33142.

BAYLINER 2850 CONTESSA COMMAND BRIDGE

Builder's Comment

Furnishings within the airy salon are upholstered in designer fabrics with complimentary patterned curtains. Smooth teak cabinetry houses plenty of storage space throughout the interior. A family of six can sleep comfortably aboard the 2850 Contessa in two double berths and two single bunks. A roomy L-shaped dinette is ideal for entertaining guests.

The complete galley contains an electric/alcohol stove, refrigerator with freezer and a deep stainless steel sink with pressure water. Dockside power with a cord and charger is provided as well.

Translucent hatches and opening ports throughout the salon add light and ventilation. The head contains a shower, vanity with mirror and sink as well as a marine head with holding tank and macerator. A six-gallon hot water heater contributes to comfort aboard.

Designed for optimum performance and fuel efficiency, each Contessa is designed on Bayliner's Sequential Lift® hull and built with the exclusive Marine Core™ laminate for strength. The 2850 Contessa Command Bridge . . . A boat load of cruising performance.

CARVER 28′ MARINER

Builder's Comment

This 28′ Carver is a true family cruiser. A wide bodied hull, command bridge with comfortable seating for six adults. Complete helm station and wide side decks all contribute to the Mariner tradition.

Below deck, the cabin has 360° visibility. Two floor plan selections are offered to suit individual tastes. Plan A (shown) sleeps six and features a four place dinette with adjacent lounge.

Plan B offers a larger U-shaped dinette with entertainment module and optional wet bar. Both floor plans offer abundant storage, complete galley and enclosed head. The head compartment includes hot water shower and vanity.

Engine options include single or twin gas diesel inboards.

CENTURY 300 GRANDE

Builder's Comment

Introduced at the 1983 New York International Boat Show the 300 Grande takes its official place in the CENTURY boat line-up for 1984

She is offered with either a single stern drive, twin stern drives or twin V 8's in a sleek 29' hull with a 10'7" beam. It is the answer in grand style for sports overnight boating but easily adaptable for occasional fishing needs.

The super deluxe cabin offers two bunks forward with private curtain, two bunks at midship by converting the dinette and wrap-around seating.

All stainless steel hardware and welded stainless bow rails are standard. The all fiberglass head is equipped with a sink and vanity

Cabin lights dot the area for full lighting with locker and storage space in abundance. A double size companion seat reverses to face aft for use by the fisherman or during that all important social hour.

A sliding heavy-duty, smoked plexiglass door is easy to move for entry into the cabin. Two large hatches on the front deck, side windows and a fully-fused instrument panel are all part of the boat

A tremendous comfortable cruiser that appeals to everyone

HACKER CRAFT 30' RUNABOUT

Builder's Comment

The most renowned restorer and owner of antique Hacker Crafts is William J. Morgan of Lake George, New York. Morgan has been rebuilding and restoring Hackers for thirty years. His own personal boats have won more antique boat awards than anyone else in the world. He has received over 36 "Best of Show" awards including the "Best of the River" award at Clayton, New York, the most prestigious award of them all

Because of Morgan's reputation for rebuilding and restoration of Hacker Crafts, he received several requests by people wanting him to design and build new Hackers. Morgan wanted to duplicate what he felt were the most noble of the old Hacker designs, but also wanted to incorporate new building techniques to make the new Hacker Crafts even stronger and more durable than the original Thus, the new Hacker Craft was born.

• POWERING AROUND—Men have rowed around the world, sailed around the world and rafted around the world. But to date there haven't been any circumnavigation records set in small powerboats.

Dutch hotelier, Eilco Kasemeir, 62, recently set out from the Netherlands in Bylgia II, a diesel-powered 39-footer (above), with sights set on an around-the-world record.

Bylgia II's hull is constructed of a light alloy, and power for the vessel is a single Perkins four-cylinder marine diesel with a planned cruising speed of 6.7 knots. The boat has a larger than average steadying sail of 91 sq. ft. and a headsail of 43 sq. ft.

Oversized fuel and water tanks give Bylgia II a range of 5,000 miles. If all goes well, Kasemeir will be back in the Netherlands by May.

• USPS IS 70—A recent gala dinner celebration at the New York Yacht Club marked the 70th Anniversary of the United States Power Squadrons. Nearly 200 people, including officers, members and guests of the USPS and the New York and Boston Yacht Clubs, joined in the tribute to those who founded the organization in a 1912-14 series of meetings held at the two clubs.

Following a brief ceremony in which USPS Chief Commander Raymond A. Finley, Jr. presented NYYC Commodore Robert G. Stone, Jr. with a handsome mahogany sculpture, an audio-visual history prepared by District 4 Commander Robert A. Green highlighted the key events and players in the organization's formation. The idea began with Roger Upton, who became the USPS' first Chief Commander, with long-time MB&S Editor Charles F. Chapman as Treasurer, on February 2, 1914.

Today, with 55,000 members, the USPS is the world's largest private boating organization. Some two million people nationwide have taken its free boating safety course.

The Black Fin 39'
Extraordinary efficiency, superior craftsmanship

There is no better way to describe the exciting limited production Black Fin 39. A hull so efficient that with the proven reliability of mid range Caterpillar 3208T diesel engines, there is no need for the large, heavy weight fuel guzzlers so common in boats in this size range. The Caterpillar 3208T results in lower initial cost, lower operating cost, and lower maintenance cost.

The Black Fin 39 is a showcase for our superior custom craftsmanship. Owners may choose from a wide range of layouts, special equipment, and decor to produce a thoroughly personalized boat.

THE NEW 27' CENTURY. ULTRA SOPHISTICATED STYLING AND ULTRA SENSIBLE ENGINEERING.

For 58 years, CENTURY has been building boats prized for both engineering and visual appeal.

And prized so by CENTURY owners the world over. These include people with the means to acquire life's better boats, and knowledgeable boating families.

The new 27 foot Meridien comes from that same engineering/styling mold.

A hull that gets on plane quickly—and maintains it—at remarkably low rpm's. And a hull that rides soft, stable and dry.

A one-piece cockpit liner integrated with the deck for monocoque-like strength.

Sleek, frameless foredeck hatch covers that let in greater quantities of light.

And a cabin with the comforts and considerations that guests accustomed to world-class hotels might well expect in a weekend cruising boat.

For a free 28-page catalog of all 21 CENTURY boats for 1984, see your nearest CENTURY dealer.

C&C 41

C&C Yachts has been an industry leader in the boat building business for many years now and any new boat of theirs is expected to be head and shoulders above existing models in performance and styling. Having established that fact, it comes as a let-down to find that the new C&C 41-footer is only half a head better than her predecessors.

She is fast. The boat I sailed on, a custom C&C 41, easily kept up with a 65-footer. Like most other C&C's the boat is easy to handle. The hull shape tends more toward the IOR type than earlier C&C's with less sweepback to the keel and a deeper, balanced rudder.

Construction is, as ever, up to C&C's high standards. A half-inch-thick balsa core has a triaxial fiberglass laminate on either side of it, creating a stiff, light hull reinforced with a grid system designed to minimize deflection of the hull under load.

The interior is well appointed with the usual "V" berth forward, molded fiberglass head unit to starboard and hanging locker to port. The dining area is in the middle of the boat with a berth on either side. Aft of the dining area is the galley to starboard, navigation table to port with a double quarterberth there.

Under sail the boat handles well. It goes to windward like a freight train, but like most C&C's needs some crew on the rail to keep it on its feet. Reaching and downwind the boat feels fast with a good motion through the water. Of course, the real test of a racer/cruiser is to see how it does in competition and then take it away for a weekend and see how the wife likes it. Unfortunately, I was not able to do that. But I was able to sail the boat long enough to know that it is a spirited thoroughbred in the C & C tradition.

On the negative side, I thought the deck looked cluttered. The fault lay in the many recesses and setbacks in the cabin line. The advantage of continuous rigging for a C&C 41 buyer is that it can be easily tuned from the deck level, rather than sending a man up the spar to tune discontinuous rigging. However, if you are a hot shot racer, discontinuous rigging may be best.

All in all, the C&C 41 is a very advanced product, not for gunkholing, but more for the moderately serious racing sailor who cruises occasionally.

For a decade, Post has produced a 42-footer that's been the pride of many a serious sportfishing campaigner. These straightforward, macho machines were the joy of the hardcore, hard-fishing set. But Post isn't resting on its laurels. Early on, Charlie Walters, Post's personable president, recognized a change in the values of those heavy-hitting tackle busters. Charlie knew that Post would have to change to meet the demands of the new sportsfishermen. So he introduced the Post 43. It's only one foot longer, but it's loaded with new ideas and design improvements that make it entirely different from the tried and true 42.

Fishermen wanted a slightly larger cockpit. They got it. The 43 has a fish-fighting arena that's a foot deeper. "With the additional 12 square feet," boasts Charlie, "there isn't another 43 around with this size cockpit."

Fishermen wanted not just a fish hatch in the transom, but a walk-through door. They got it—a double-duty transom door to hoist record-breaking fish into the cockpit, and, at the marina, to step onto the deck easily.

Fishermen are family men, and as such want a boat that appeals to their wives and children. In the 43, they got it. A newly designed walk-around double bed in the master stateroom, forward, is just one of the elegant touches. Large head, a two-berth guest cabin, ample storage spots, a modern galley, and a sophisticated decor package bring the Post 43 into the age of style.

While all these improvements are located above the waterline, below the boot top the hull has been modified as well. A second spray strake has been added to the chine. This makes the 43 a drier boat with improved lift characteristics. Extra lift means quicker planing, explains Charlie. And with optional twin 6V91 TIs, the boat will do 33 knots.

In the heart of the beast, Post's quality design ideas are evident everywhere. A special rubber boot is mounted over the stuffing box so sea water isn't sprayed over the entire engine room. A unique bonding system eliminates use of external zincs on rudders, struts and shafts. A single zinc is located at the waterline for easy inspection. In the engine room itself, access to oil service points is easy and open. A fuel transfer pump is standard to move fuel, if necessary. No mid-cruise valve switching is needed here.

This kind of detail has given Post its reputation for quality. And the new Post 43 is a great example of what can be done for those families interested in the sportsfishing lifestyle.—Dan Fales

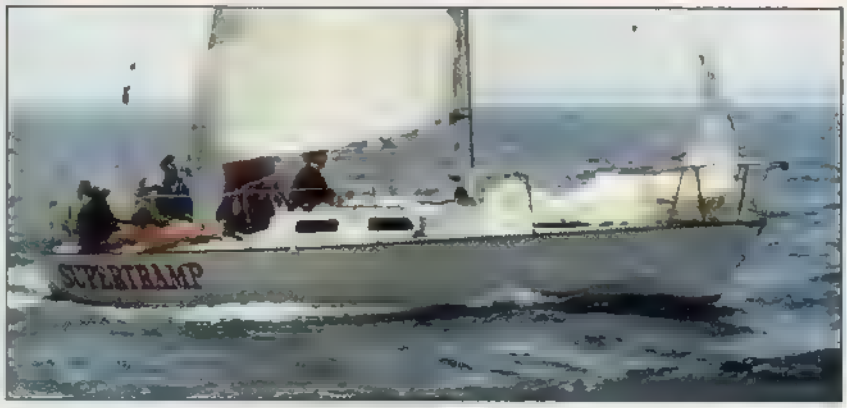
EVELYN 32

Recently, I met the owners of Ideal Windlass and sailed on their boat. Betsy Fennik and Cliff Raymond own an Evelyn 32 called More Black Cat and on a cold, blustery day, we sailed the boat on Narragansett Bay.

We set the 150 percent genoa and full main on a close reach in 10 to 12 knots of wind. We were moving along at 6.5 to 6.7 knots. It became apparent very early in our sail that the boat was fast. Many fast boats are also easy to broach and try as I might, even close reaching under spinnaker, I could not broach the 32. After reaching out through the channel we came hard on the wind. The boat is very easy to steer and beautifully balanced.

The hull is an Airex and balsa cored laminate which has a very high strength-to-weight ratio and is stiffened with unidirectional fiberglass and carbon fiber.

Inside, the boat has a "V" berth forward, a port and starboard main berth, a small galley with an ice box/nav table opposite. Aft of this area under the cockpit is the head unit and two quarter berths. There is only about 5'4" of headroom below in this boat, but windage is lowered for the racing sailor.



Usually with a lightweight boat of this style a fractional rig is fitted. But the Evelyn has a masthead rig using full size spinnakers for downwind work. This has the effect of putting a lot of power over a relatively fine bow.

The only unusual note was the lack of an engine. This will add about $5,000 to the price and about 200 extra pounds.

If you are the type of sailor that likes to go fast, win races and have fun, this is the boat for you. It is not your type of boat if you want a plush interior and full headroom.—R.M.

SHAMROCK 259

If pictures of Shamrock's patented "keel drives" haven't caught your eye at boat shows, perhaps the "My Bottom Is Different" posters have. Founded in 1971 by former marine mechanic George Boynton, who set out to right all the wrongs he had discovered in 22 years of working on other boats, Shamrock has built its excellent reputation on the keel/skeg concept.

Running the 26-footer revealed the virtues of the design: The window in the keel allows you to back down in either direction; the variable deadrise hull, which has its deepest point amidships and draws only 22 inches, gets on plane almost immediately, tracks extremely well, handles a following sea with ease and has a surprisingly short turning radius with virtually no side-slip. An added feature is a fiberglass strut with "memory"—the tendency to return to its original position after being stressed.

Boynton's mechanical background accounts for such features as total accessibility to every system and every hidden area. His fishing experience accounts for such options as a seven-cubic-foot insulated fish box, a complete tackle station and superb cockpit space.

The 259 is trailable and comes in three versions: cuddy cabin, center console and pilot house.

Power options are a 250-hp Pleasurecraft gas engine or a 200-hp Perkins turbocharged diesel that yields 30 mph and gets 4.9 mpg. —John Clemans

GULFSTAR 36

As usual, when I arrange to go sailing in "sunny" Florida it turns out to be raining. But Allan Smith, Gulfstar's bosun and troubleshooter, was on hand to open up the new 36 sloop so we could both get below where it was dry. My first impression of the boat was one of solidity.

The interior is laid out rather conventionally with the galley immediately to port at the bottom of the companionway. The "U" shaped galley has an ice box on the aft side, a stove at the bottom of the "U," and twin stainless steel sinks on the forward face. The only problem I can see with this layout is access to the port side of the Westerbeke 27-hp engine. Fortunately, the oil dipstick and filter are on the more accessible starboard side.

Forward of the galley/bureau area is a full-width dining spot with a drop leaf table on the centerline. The entire interior is very attractively trimmed with teak that has been varnished to a nice bright finish. At the forward end of the cabin is the main bulkhead, with the head and shower unit just aft of it to starboard, a hanging locker/bureau to port, and a large double "V" berth in the forepeak.

Back on deck the rain had cleared and the Gulfstar crew were removing sailcovers prior to our sailing. Under power, the Westerbeke pushed the boat along at about 6.8 to 7 knots running at 2800 rpm.

We set the main and reached out towards the Gulfstream. Under sail the boat moved comfortably in the slight sea that had been left over from the previous day's storm. There were enough controls on the mast and boom to enable the sails to be set for best effect.

On the wind the boat felt comfortable. The old adage of "built for comfort, not for speed" would be very true here. The Gulfstar moved along easily, close hauled. We were about 35-38 degrees off the apparent wind, tacking through an angle of 75-78 degrees. The wind was still fairly light, about 10 knots, but the boat moved easily at 5.2 to 5.4 knots. After beating against the winds and the Gulfstream for a while we reached off and then ran back towards the inlet as the rain started coming down.

After sailing the boat and carefully looking it over I would say that for the owner who wants a good, solid, somewhat chunky cruiser, the Gulfstar 36 is a good buy. It has the look and feel of a boat built about 15 years ago when quality and seaworthiness were more important than building inexpensively and going as fast as possible.—R.M

"I researched every available boat before I bought my first Albin Trawler. Two years later, I bought my second."

John J. Fitzmaurice
Halesite, Long Island, N.Y.

A TRUE STORY

I'm an engineer and I like to get value on anything I buy. So I studied every boat at the boat shows, and I read all the yachting magazines. I'd been a sailor and I wanted to find out if a power boat was for me.

I knew that some boats loose their value quickly. Some hold their own. Others actually appreciate in value. If I decided that I didn't like powerboating, I wanted to find out while owning one that had appreciated in value. Reading the used boat ads would tell me which was which. There were very few ads for used Albin Trawlers. That told me that Albin owners weren't anxious to sell. A good sign. Over the years I had learned that when car owners didn't like a particular model, you could tell by the high number of used car ads you saw for that model.

I looked around. There were cheaper trawlers that could save me money. But I wanted a seaworthy boat with good re-sale value. That eliminated the brand X boats. And a costlier trawler I saw was, in my judgement, only cosmetically better.

From my study, I figured that an Albin Trawler would probably appreciate in value, so in 1978 I bought an Albin-36. It was a test to see if I could live with a trawler. As I said, I had been a sailor and power boats weren't my idea of fun.

But I must have known something. I discovered a new kind of boating. I did a lot of relaxed cruising. I'm not your seven ports in seven days kind of man. The large outdoor living space and diesel fuel economy appealed to me. And the ease of maintenance.

What I really had in mind was owning a boat that I could also live on. A lot of people talk about living on a boat, but few make their dream come true. I was determined, and my wife was game.

To move out of a house—my three daughters had already left home—and live on a boat would take a larger boat. At least an Albin-43. And I would want to redesign some of the interior. Albin interiors are marvelous and the cabinetry is unbelievable, but I wanted to customize the boat to suit the requirements of living aboard.

Everything went according to plan. I sold my Albin-36 for more than the purchase price. And the dealer agreed to make some interior design changes. I love the exterior with its bold prow and European design touches.

I took delivery of my Albin-43 in March 1980. My wife, Carol, and I have been living on it ever since. We berth at the Huntington Yacht Club in Huntington Harbor on Long Island.

On good weather weekends, I just roll out of bed and cruise off on Long Island Sound. Weekdays, I drive off to my job at AT&T. When a siding or termite control salesman calls, I let him talk on and on before I tell him where I live.

Did I get my money's worth from Albin? Do fish swim?"

TOLLYCRAFT 61

To create Tollycraft's new 61 the company's founder, R.M. Tollefson, came out of semi-retirement to join Ed Monk, Jr., in designing what turned out to be a notable new hull. A stepped-out, spray-knocker strip married to rounded bilges and a fine entry give the 61 both low and high-power efficiency. At the low end—options range from 600 to 1,200 hp—the ride is comfortable, the operation high and efficient. At the top end, according to President Bruce Hallberg, "She squats, lifts and suddenly goes 18-20 knots with good stability." As well as keeping things dry at speed, the spray knocker dampens any rolling tendencies in a beam sea.

The 61's long low foredeck and sweeping sheer give this Tolly a racy profile. In addition, the pilothouse and bridge are integrated with the radar arch for a swept-back high-performance cruiser look. Hallberg confirms the impression that there's something European going on here: "Basically, we're big-boat people, and the 61 has the traditional look of all our line—plus quite a bit of Italian style." Inside, says Hallberg, "We've utilized space for larger cabins and not hallways." A midships owner's cabin has a centerline queen-sized bed, as does the forward guest cabin; a third starboard cabin has two berths. The saloon has a three-stool bar, an L-shaped settee backing the galley's counters, a desk, a buffet and a feeling of restraint—there's more space than things. The large pilothouse is a natural for social gathering as well, with a settee and table aft of the uncluttered no-nonsense helm station, which in this model was packed with owner Hal Georgens' (a Computer Hall of Fame member) "spy ship" electronics. Practical matters: You can load fuel from either side, waste and bilge water drains to central transom outlets; the use of teak is minimized for easy maintenance and a brighter below decks, but shows up where it looks best, on cabinetry, trim and doors. The hull is 3/4-inch Airex between fiberglass laminates. The bottom is reinforced in critical stress areas. There are full length 'glass stringers and lag-bolted fuel tank mounts.

With the Ed Monk know-how and the yacht-building expertise of R.M. Tollefson, this new Tollycraft 61 has the pedigree to make it as good a sea boat in the Gulf of Alaska as in the Gulf of Mexico; as for style, she'll fit right in on the Riviera. The 61 is a good, top-of-the-line mix of traditional and modern.—Don Wallace

BAYLINER'S AFFORDABLE CONTESSAS

The top values in quality wide-beam cruisers

For those who may have thought their chances of owning a fully-equipped, wide-beam cruiser were as far off as their dream ports-of-call, Bayliner® presents two affordable ways to start living the dream now: the 2850 Contessa Sunbridge and the 2850 Contessa Command Bridge.

The Sunbridge's sleek styling barely hints at the room below. There's tri-cabin privacy with a master stateroom aft, V-berth forward and—in between—a sumptuous salon with dramatic U-shaped lounge and dinette. A full galley and head with shower are standard, of course.

Plush main salon: dinette converts to king-size berth.

The Command Bridge model is equally impressive with dual control stations, sleeping for six and an airy salon with 360° visibility.

Both Contessas feature Bayliner's exclusive Marine Core™ construction and Sequential Lift™ hull for quick planing, high spirited performance with minimum horsepower. And both are completely equipped, including electric refrigerator, alcohol/electric stove, hot/cold water, shower, dockside power, trim tabs, swim step, bow platform with anchor roller and more. All standard.

The result is a pair of luxurious wide-beam cruisers that are so affordable you can stop dreaming and start living the good life today. See the new Contessas today at your Bayliner® dealer. Check the Yellow Pages or write Bayliner®, P.O. Box 24467, Seattle, WA 98124.

ences for a brew, which seem to differ regionally, not just from state to state but from bar to bar. At The Raw Bar in Newport, R.I. the most popular brew by far is Bass Ale on tap. Down at the Dockside Terrace in the Miamarina complex in Miami, the clientele orders "greenies"—that is, Heineken in green bottles, which are also the choice of Caribbean-bound customers at the Sea Shanty in Ft. Lauderdale. Up in Annapolis, Md. at Riordan's, Michelob is the best seller, while in Long Beach's Wind Rose the crews that come in after a long day of racing equally divide their preferences between Budweiser, Michelob, Coors, and Miller Light. Curiously enough, beer on tap doesn't sell well at all to the yacht club members who drink at Jonathan's Seagull in Mamaroneck, N.Y., where Budweiser became the beer of choice ever since the management switched to long-neck bottles. (They're easier to hold while arguing tactics and wind conditions.)

Floating Keg Party

A true beer drinker should keep in mind a few tips when storing and serving the brew on board. If a beer is to be bottled or canned, the brewery will usually pasteurize it to prevent any further fermentation that might serve to burst the bottles or cans. The peak drinking time for canned beer is considered to be about four months, bottles, six, so it's a good idea not to store either for more than a short duration, especially on a very hot boat in summer. If a canned or bottled beer has not been pasteurized, it may be called "draft beer," although "draft brewed" and "draft beer flavor" may contain some pasteurized beer. A keg is a nice idea for an onboard party, and the beer may actually have a fuller flavor, because it is not pasteurized for the reason that kegs are assumed to be used up faster than canned or bottled beers. So you don't want to store a keg for too long on board.

Chilling a beer is a matter of overwhelming preference for Americans, mainly because the light flavor of domestic beers takes to the cold just as white wine does. But fuller bodied beers lose flavor when chilled too much, as any English or Irishman will argue by the hour. Last of all, I hear they now make "diet beer," with fewer calories. But I don't imagine any true yachtsman wants to hear about that. ⚓

It seems that quality has become a fleeting thing. Often, in order to get it, you must sacrifice something else. PERFORMANCE, COMFORT or STYLE. EASTWIND is the exception. Built in 1980 by the Burger Boat Company to the same exacting standards of design and production which have made Burger a leader in the boating industry for over one hundred years.

PERFORMANCE...The EASTWIND's GM 12V71 TI engines produce a cruising speed of 18 knots, and its 3000 gallon fuel capacity give it a range in excess of 1300 miles (Palm Beach to Montauk with a 1000 gallon reserve; Palm Beach to Halifax with a 300 gallon reserve).

COMFORT...State-of-the-art mechanical and electrical equipment include Plath auto pilot and gyrocompass, Raytheon Satellite Navigation Unit, Northstar 6000 C Loran, Dual Decca Radars, Stabilizers, Dual 20 KW Generators, large fuel capacity, and water maker give it the ability for pleasurable long range cruising.

STYLE...Both inside and out, the EASTWIND is a total living environment of understated elegance, designed to perfection. An extended deck house and a flying bridge is equipped with duplicate steering and engine controls similar to those in the pilot house. Within, the EASTWIND boasts an enclosed deck salon and luxurious dining room for gracious entertaining; a handsome master stateroom and two equally spacious and impressive guest rooms provide superb accommodations.

EASTWIND...built from a century-old tradition of quality and excellence. Ready for the challenge of tomorrow.

of teak, 11-foot beam, 800-mile range and 5-person sleeping capacity. The main and forward cabins are separated by the pilothouse. Besides the light weight Pathfinder 50, 85-hp Perkins and 90-hp Lehmans are also available, as are an open-cockpit model and a 36-footer.

The Doo-Dah has a working boom, hydraulic steering, shorepower connection, and a watertight compartment belowdecks aft, thanks to a commercial-weight aluminum hatch that makes the boat more salty.

The Sundowner is the least salty of the pleasure tugs, however—compromising a little on form for the sake of functionalism. But its jaunty stack, high bow, rounded stern and reverse-canted windshield give it a dignity and distinctiveness that its owners swear by. "I won't even consider a bow rail [let alone stern and side rails]," says Frank Moses. "It would spoil the lines of the boat. Betty doesn't mind going forward to get the anchor. You get familiar with the handholds and know where to reach." A surprising number of pleasure tug owners agree that the added safety of rails is not as important as their boats' profiles. Consequently, newcomers often feel that maneuvering around the perimeter can get a little hairy, given the calf-high gunwales.

One pleasure tug owner who did opt for bow and stern rails is Dennise Cassidy of Vallejo, Calif., whose 36-foot Nordic Cruise Tug, Little Toot, is the cornerstone of an incipient charter business. Dennise moved to the San Francisco area four years ago from Southern California and resolved to get a boat. "I fell in love with the Nordic at the Oakland Boat Show," she says. "There's nothing like it—this boat has its own unique character."

Looks Good Going Slow

Built in Woodinville, Wash., the handsome Nordic Tug is the brainchild of Jerry Husted, who began playing with the concept at the beginning of the fuel crisis in 1974: "The problem was to build a powerboat that would look right going slow. I asked Lynn Senour to style it after the tugs of the 1930's-50's. But Lynn said he had no interest in doing a full displacement hull like the big tugs. 'It's not safe in a small, slow-moving boat; a round bottom will roll your guts out and can even roll over,' he said. He wanted to try what was then a relatively new idea—a semi-displacement shape that would act like a displacement hull up to speeds of seven or eight knots and then begin to plane. It was quite a gamble, but it has paid off."

Husted took his first boat to the Kingdome Boat Show in Seattle in 1981. He took one order every three hours for ten days, and has been turning out one or two boats a month ever since. He stresses the integrity of the boats that emerge from the rural sheds at Nordic's friendly, family-style facility: "Strength, stability and safety are what we're known for," he says.

That's one of the reasons Dennise Cassidy chose a Nordic as the first boat in what she hopes will become a fleet of six-passenger charter boats. "I definitely wanted to go into business with my boat," says Dennise, "and I figured that if I liked the Nordic so much, other people would too. My idea was a local charter business; at first I thought I'd concentrate on children's parties and take small groups out for rides and serve cake and ice cream. The tug seemed ideal. I still haven't abandoned the idea, but so far I've concentrated on couples—day cruises down into San Francisco Bay and back [to the Glen Cove Marina], with a stop for brunch."

Dennise, who does her own mainte-

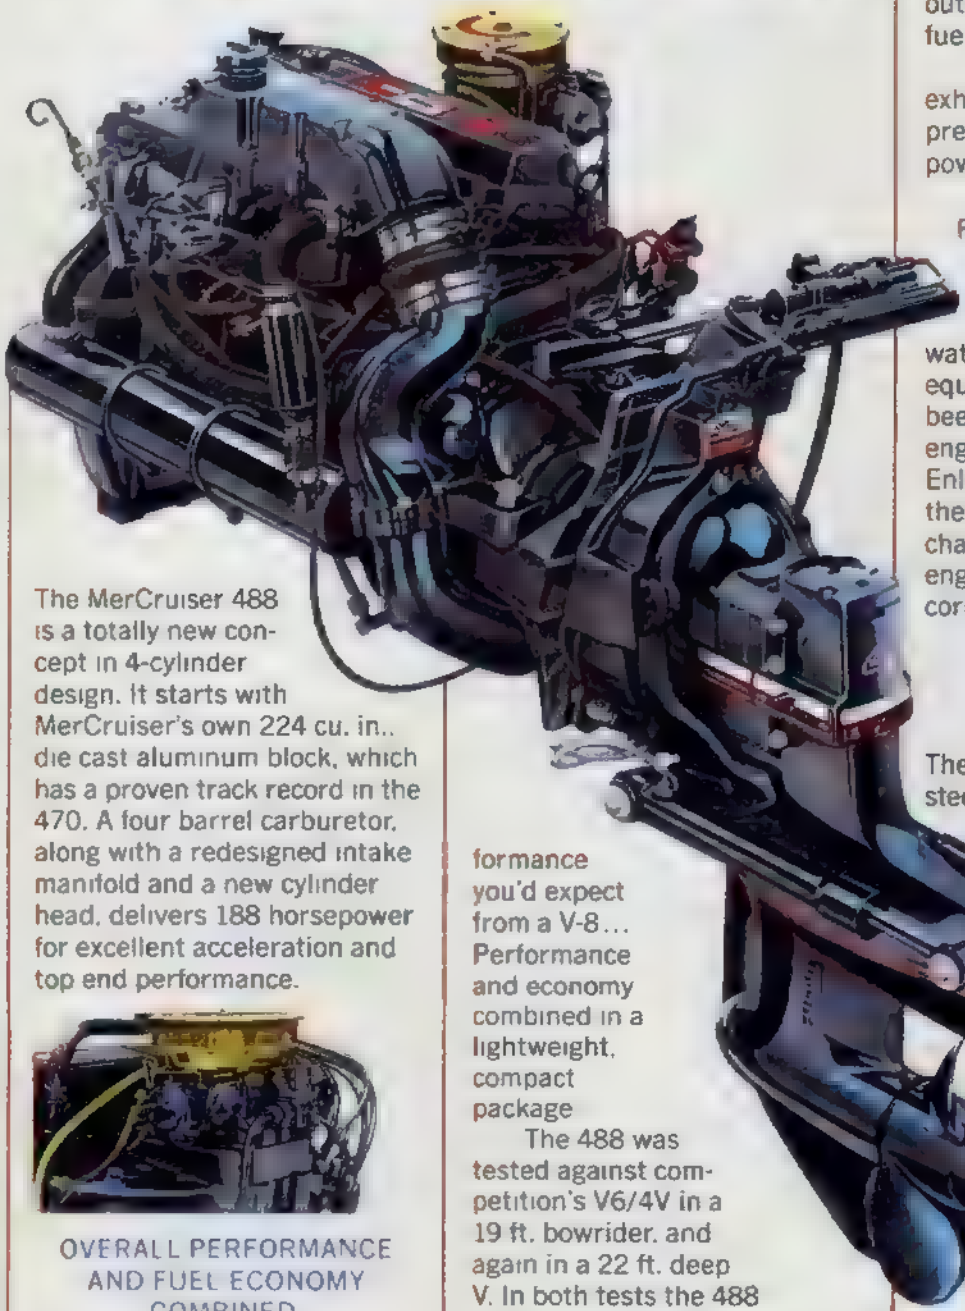
MERCRUISER 488. A NEW FORMULA IN 4-CYLINDER DESIGN.



The MerCruiser 488 is a totally new concept in 4-cylinder design. It starts with MerCruiser's own 224 cu. in., die cast aluminum block, which has a proven track record in the 470. A four barrel carburetor, along with a redesigned intake manifold and a new cylinder head, delivers 188 horsepower for excellent acceleration and top end performance.

OVERALL PERFORMANCE AND FUEL ECONOMY COMBINED

The 488 also provides exceptional fuel economy at cruising speeds. The 4 barrel carburetor supplies the power needed to get on plane fast. Yet, in the mid-range, it delivers the optimum in fuel economy. At full throttle it gives top end performance you'd expect from a V-8... Performance and economy combined in a lightweight, compact package

The 488 was tested against competition's V6/4V in a 19 ft. bowrider, and again in a 22 ft. deep V. In both tests the 488 had the edge in acceleration, top end performance and fuel economy

PERFORMANCE IS ONLY HALF THE 488 STORY.

As in the MCM 470, the die cast aluminum block provides an ideal power to weight ratio. The cross flow cylinder head with canted valves allows maximum engine breathing which results in a combination of outstanding performance and fuel economy.

The "tuned" dual passage exhaust system reduces back pressure for increased horsepower.

FRESH WATER COOLING. OPERATING EFFICIENCY AND DEPENDABILITY.

The 488 includes fresh water cooling as standard equipment. This system has been redesigned to improve engine operating efficiency. Enlarging the surface area of the tubes within the heat exchanger results in increased engine efficiency plus internal corrosion protection at its best.

POWER STEERING IS STANDARD ON THE 488.

The "direct acting" power steering system and Quicksilver Black Max Propellers generate reliable, positive steering control and improved performance.

WHY SETTLE FOR LESS.

The compact, powerful 488 delivers 4-cylinder fuel economy and performance you'd expect from a V-8. It's just one more example of MerCruiser's commitment to remaining number one in product quality.

Sea Ray Sundancers
The perfect family cruisers

A bold statement, perhaps. But true.

The original Sundancer defined the family cruiser role nearly a decade ago. Weekender accommodations for four to six; galley and head; contemporary styling; and uncompromising performance. Now there are dozens of models in the family cruiser market. But none put it all together like the Sundancers, thanks to the continuing Sea Ray commitment to quality.

Prove it to yourself. See all the 1984 Sundancers from 24 1/2 to 34 feet. They're available with MerCruiser Stern Drive or Inboard power. MerCruiser delivers the fuel efficiency and performance that helps the Sundancers continue to be the perfect family cruisers.

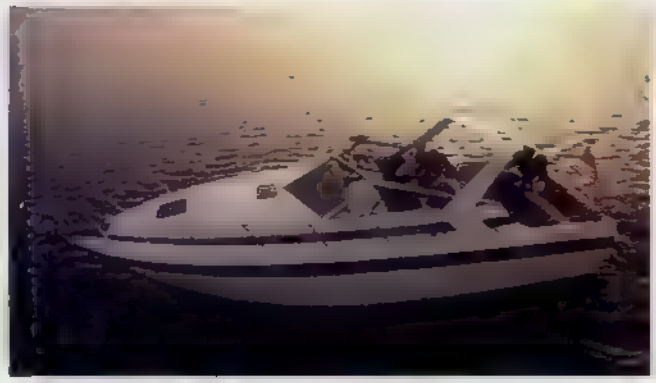
OUR NAME HAS BEEN THE SAME... FOR 110 YEARS.



Since the day we built America's first recreational powerboat, Chris-Craft has been synonomous with just about every kind of boat you can think of.

Yet if we didn't tell you, you might not know that in 1984 Chris-Craft will produce almost 60 different models. From economy-minded 16 footers to luxurious cruisers, each is built on the premise that at Chris-Craft, value is not just a saying; it's a part of our 110 year tradition.

From the inventors in 1874 to the innovators of today, our name is still the same. It means quality, versatility, high resale value and, dollar for dollar, some of the most practical boats afloat.

When introduced back in the late 1970's, the PHOENIX 27' established new standards in design construction, engineering and performance, and it led the way into the 80's for boats in its size range.

Over the years it repeatedly broke new ground with a broad variety of successful power options First introduced as a twin gasoline or diesel inboard, the single engine version followed soon afterwards A short while later an exciting outboard model was added making it the first production outboard in its size and class. In 1982 an OMC Sea Drive model was developed, and now we've introduced a new model to accommodate Gil Bracket mounted outboards that your dealer can arrange to have factory installed.

No matter which power option you may choose for your PHOENIX 27', you'll still get the best construction and engineering available today featuring an awesome one-piece moulded fiberglass inner-liner and a "double deadrise" hull design that made deep-vee rock and roll a thing of the past You'll also get that huge, deep cockpit that puts a lot of 40 footers to shame

Why is this new 46 Viking running 40 mph to get to Montauk Point?

In August 1983, 109 Viking Yachts rendezvoused at Montauk Point, New York, to spend a long weekend together fishing, making new friends and chatting with Bill Healey, President of Viking Yachts.

You probably think a tremendous incentive, such as a drawing for a free boat brought all these Viking owners to the rendezvous. Sorry to disappoint you! Vikings came as far as 500 miles for the event simply because they wanted to. Call it pride, ego, fellowship... it's all part of the "Viking Mystique." The fact that they know they have the finest boat of its kind available results in a very special feeling. One you can only experience by owning a Viking Yacht.

To learn more about Viking Yachts and what they can do for you, see your local Viking dealer or call Tom Carroll at 609-296-6000. Viking Yachts, Route 9 and the Garden State Parkway, New Gretna, New Jersey 08224. Telex 467730.

LASER 28

There were two former Olympic sailors on board the day we sailed the new Laser 28 out into Chesapeake Bay. Ian Bruce, Laser builder, and Hans Fogh of North Sails in Canada kept a careful watch on our performance as we flew by 30-footers.

The wind was Northeast, gusting to about 25 knots, but with a full roach, battened 108 percent genoa and full main we smoked to windward. It took a few minutes to get the feel of the boat but once in the groove this new Laser felt fast. Out by the Spider buoy we cracked sheets and kept accelerating. The boat felt very easy to steer and under control at all times. When a gust hit, we simply reached off a little more and gained speed. Once off the wind we set a 3/4 oz. spinnaker and really had fun. I found the boat so responsive that I could catch the fold in the spinnaker by using the helm before Hans could pull in the sheet. We could have cleated the sheet and trimmed the boat to the sail.

The boat is built of high tech materials in a closed mold system. Two layers of Kevlar are bonded to a 1/2-inch-thick Termanto foam core. (This is an Airex type core material.) This gives an immensely strong, light hull with good stiffness and high impact resistance.

Inside, the boat has a typical European layout with a dinette, "V" berth, settee berth, galley and a quarter berth. By moving cushions around, the "V" berth can be opened for sail stowage. Ian Bruce has maximized the potential of this interior. Headroom is better than many boats of this size and weight: 5'10 1/2".

However, I would like to see bigger winches on deck and room to put the helmsman's feet when he is sitting on the weather side. Apart from these niggles we had alot of fun in a boat that gives meaning to the words "fast is fun."—R.M.

CABO RICO 38

From her hand-carved trailboards to the varnished transom rail the Cabo Rico 38 spells quality. The first thing that catches your eye when you step aboard is the wood trim. It is beautifully grained Costa Rican teak, which the builders have carefully matched to produce a superb look.

Under power, the boat moves at about 6.5 to 7 knots pushed by a Perkins engine turning at about 2400 rpm. Once clear of the Annapolis harbor entrance we set the mainsail, club-footed staysail, and topsail and reached down the bay. The wind was blowing 15 to 20 with some of the heavier gusts up to 30 knots. In these gusts the boat simply pushed the lee rail down and kept sailing totally under control.

In the lighter wind the boat felt a little under-powered but as we came on the wind we rolled the topsail up a little to prevent burying the rail. The helm felt a little heavy at times but it moved well, with a good motion. We were able to tack through an angle of about 85 degrees.

This is a comfortable, long-keeled cruising boat which is very solidly constructed. However, for those light, almost drifting conditions when you are sitting in the cockpit, drink in hand, watching the sun go down, I would like to see a little larger rig. It always seems to be a shame to have to turn on the engine to get home, shattering the evening quiet.—R.M.

GRADY-WHITE TROPHY 25

This year marks Grady-White's 25th anniversary, and the North Carolina builder has much to celebrate. In addition to being one of the most successful manufacturers on the fishing scene, the firm, under the direction of owner Eddie Smith, has made its mark by way of innovation—from the introduction of the "walk-around" concept in 1974 to the recent unveiling of its "dual console" configuration.

The Trophy 25, Grady-White's newest entry, once again breaks new ground by, as Smith puts, "being out of synch with the industry." He's referring to the Trophy's lack of interior amenities. While other builders have been packing enclosed heads, stoves, fridges and dinettes into small fishing boats, the Trophy's cabin space has been given over to rod and tackle storage, with just a single berth and open head in the creature comforts department.

There are tackle drawers, holders for 12 rods, carpeted shelves specially-designed to hold tackle boxes securely, a hanging locker for foul weather gear, and built-in chart tubes. Four-way ventilation, lure hangers, a large under-bunk storage cabinet and a non-skid fiberglass liner make the lockable cuddy a no-nonsense, practical area. This design should appeal to the fisherman (or fishing family) who knows the value of order and organization when it comes to storing the endless array of gear that serious fishing requires. For once a builder has recognized that designing a compact, efficient fishing machine entails some heavy trade-offs to excel at what it is supposed to do best.

The Trophy's other appealing feature—also a function of the Spartan interior—is its huge self-bailing cockpit (115 square feet). The helm and companion pedestal chairs are on a raised level that affords bait-watchers good visibility. Beneath the chairs are four deep tackle drawers, and between them, in the sole, is a large (150-quart), rounded-corner recirculating live well. Aft of the tackle drawers are benches, port and starboard, that house a 300-quart, foam-insulated fish box and a bait rigging station with sink, fresh water spigot, ice box and cutting board. Two more removable, insulated boxes are built into the transom gunwale for storing beverages, bait or extra gear and tackle.

The Trophy's proven, 20-degree V-hull with sharp entry and pronounced bow flare gives a soft, yet stable ride offshore. The 9'6" beam, another Grady-White "out of synch" design feature, increases cockpit and interior space and provides a substantial platform for mounting a tower. A choice of outboards, I/Os or Sea Drives should meet any fisherman's needs. Eddie Smith's dictum on the Trophy was: "Let's do this one for the fisherman." They did. —J.C.

CIGARETTE 43′ HUNTRESS

Builder's Comment

The new Huntress 43′ epitomizes the luxury and design that has been the hallmark of Cigarette. Under the direction of General Manager Kees Sanders, famed naval architect Jim Wynne has designed the Huntress to serve the sportsman without compromise.

Powered by twin 355 hp Caterpillar turbo diesels, which are aftercooled for super efficiency, she will reach a top speed of approximately 45 mph and cruise comfortably at 40, depending on options.

One theme that is apparent throughout is the attention to detail. Below deck the wall coverings are ultrasuede, the standard entertainment center contains a Sony TV and stereo. The galley has a large microwave/convection oven and well apportioned counter space. The private stand up head contains a separate shower.

On deck, the Huntress features a mediterranean style padded lounging area forward, self-bailing cockpit with transom door and bait preparation station aft.

POST 43 SPORT FISHERMAN

Builder's Comment

Post Marine Company has been building fast, solid fishermen for over 26 years. Their newest product, the Post 43, now in full production, is meant for the competitive sportsman.

Designed with a second spray rail built into the hull, the Post 43 features an enlarged cockpit and a walk-through transom door. Its construction is sturdy with an advanced hull design that allows remarkable agility and a solid stance while at sea. Equipped with standard 671TI engines, the Post 43 will achieve an estimated top speed of 30 knots

Equally impressive is the interior design of the new Post with its strong emphasis on luxury and comfort. The master stateroom, located forward, focuses on the walk-around, queen-sized berth and four hanging lockers for increased storage space. A new feature in the deckhouse is a convenient wet-bar

Post Marine's legacy of dedication to quality and value are built into every inch of the Post 43, the new addition to the Post tradition.

TOLLYCRAFT 34 TRI-CABIN

Builder's Comment

The 34 Tollycraft Tri-Cabin can be compared with many other cruisers in the 36 to 40' category when it comes to the spaciousness boating families seek.

The rich interior features incomparable hand-rubbed teak-accented joiner work combined with rich color-coordinated fabrics and materials.

In the large main salon a comfortable settee combines with a high-low table opposite the L-shaped galley. The forward stateroom features a huge double V-berth with its plush filler, along with private head and a huge wardrobe.

The master stateroom aft has its private head complete with shower. The double berth and an L-shaped vanity with drawers beneath provides an abundance of storage.

The large command bridge will seat 5 and features full instrumentation above, as well as the command post in the salon for rough weather operation.

Mechanical instrumentation is the finest. Practically everything comes standard, including shore power systems, hydraulic steering, engine filters for separating water from the fuel, heavy-duty batteries and audio alarm systems.

The 34' Tri-Cabin's 200 gal. fuel capacity assures long distance cruising. A "live aboard boat" it certainly is.

GRAND BANKS 42

Builder's Comment

The Grand Banks 42 is the choice of many cruising couples. Two private staterooms, each with head and shower, provide accommodations for the owners and their guests.

The quality built into every GB can be seen from the gel-coated exterior on the outside of the 42 to the beautiful teak furnishing on the inside. Her standard features include a 7.5 kw generator, electric oven with range and refrigeration.

The standard twin diesel power package provides a cruising speed of 9 knots and available options can deliver a top speed of close to 18 knots. The semi-displacement hull of the 42 handles well over the entire speed range.

Continuous product refinement by American Marine is evident to those familiar with older 42's. A wider deckhouse now gives more interior space and 3 different aft cabin layouts are possible, including a walk around double bed. For more information contact a Grand Banks Dealer or write.

GRAND BANKS 49

Builder's Comment

Like all Grand Banks, the GB 49 was designed for cruising. She can be handled by a knowledgeable couple and provide cruising pleasure for six in three private cabins.

The impressive list of standard equipment includes a 15KW generator, air conditioning, washer and dryer, anchor windlass, electric heads and ice-maker. Standard power is a pair of 120 hp Ford Lehmans (options available) that provide a 9 knot cruise while burning a total of 6 gallons an hour.

Several features of the GB 49 layout are the flybridge, six foot headroom in the engine room, a huge lazarette and dinghy storage on the aft cabin top. Inside, ample storage will satisfy even those planning to live aboard.

Introduced in early 1980, the Grand Banks 49 has quickly become a favorite with cruising yacahtsmen. Hull number 42 is scheduled for completion in late 1983. For more information contact a Grand Banks dealer or write:

ISLAND GYPSY 51

Builder's Comment

Roominess is the key to comfort living both ashore and aboard a boat. This is why Island Gypsy 51 offers 240 square feet of covered side deck and 320 square feet of open sun deck plus a well designed interior layout—practically every inch of space is utilized. The boat also features three staterooms all with their own private heads and showers. Drinks and meals can be enjoyed on the aft deck or in the saloon which is spacious and tastefully furnished. The boat has a walk-in engine room and is equipped with two control stations—one on the flybridge and one in the saloon, both with complete instrumentation controls and hydraulic steering. The Island Gypsy 51 features GRP Sandwiched construction with interiors of exceptionally fine Burmese teak that Kong & Halvorsen is famous for.

CAPE DORY CRUISING TRAWLER 24C

Builder's Comment

The Cape Dory 24C (Custom model) is a ruggedly built, heavy weather, full displacement cruising yacht with big boat capabilities.

Expressly designed for cost conscious sportsmen and cruising families, the CDT/24C has a full displacement hull which provides exceptional sea-keeping abilities and outstanding fuel efficiency.

From her large 85 sq. ft. cockpit to her unique cruising interior—galley, dinette, shower—the CDT/24C is finished like a fine yacht by the New England craftsmen of Cape Dory Yachts.

The 24C cruises easily at 6.25 knots, burning ¾ of a gallon per hour. She can run for 37 hours at hull speed, giving a cruising range of approximately 230 miles.

The standard Westerbeke FWC 30 horsepower diesel is smooth running with power to spare for bucking heavy seas, currents or headwinds. The engine is geared low and swings a large 17" x 14" propeller.

Positive foam flotation makes the CDT/24C virtually unsinkable. An optional steadying sail adds even more stability and comfort. Her eight foot beam makes her trailerable . . . a salty seagoing cruiser for the serious boatman.

Builder's Comment

Combining the best features of large cruising sailboats and trawlers, Bill Wellington's design evolved from several years cruising in Europe and the Mediterranean. She is a fuel efficient, shallow draft, relatively light displacement boat with the fuel and water capacity, accommodations and storage for long passages in real comfort. The boat pictured is sloop-rigged with a 54-foot tabernacle mast for canal cruising and has a second steering station on an optional flying bridge. Built on a limited production, semi-custom basis, all WELLINGTON arrangements can be altered to meet an owner's requirements.

Not shown is the large full headroom area under the deckhouse which is available for a workbench with storage and also space for an optional washer and dryer. Just aft of the work area is the spacious walk-around engine room where every piece of equipment is easily accessible for maintenance.

A great boat for short handed cruising, she is running 9½ knots at 1800 rpm's with her single 120 hp engine, using a very economical two gallons of fuel per hour.

This year the Nauticat 43 joins her "big sister," the Nauticat 52, in Nauticat's new line of high performance motorsailers. The Nauticat 43 was designed by Sparkman & Stephens and is built in Finland by Siltala Yachts OY, a company known world-wide for its full range of finely crafted traditional motorsailers. The 43 is available with several standard accommodation plans and custom alterations are welcomed. Nauticat Inc., the North American distributor of Nauticat motorsailers, places great emphasis on working closely with you to make the Nauticat 43 (or any of their other fine models) your personal yacht. The design is ideally suited for extended cruising and performs well under both sail and power. It is ketch rigged for easy handling with a minimum of crew. The standard auxiliary has a 1,000 mile range at a sustained 8-9 knots. Optional power, tankage and equipment are available. The Nauticat 43 has two complete steering stations with excellent 360° visibility from both. For those who can appreciate the viability and alternatives that a good motorsailer provides the Nauticat 43 is a must to see.

"The HULL has a medium displacement for its waterline length. The section shape forward is a soft "V" that goes into an almost flat bottom amidships for increased stability and span for the keel. Aft the sections stay flat and full with straight diagonals. The keel sections are developed from systematic testing that was done on America's Cup Contenders which were designed by us.

The RIG is a sloop rig. This rig combined with excellent stability will insure that the yacht is not overpowered too early and thus avoiding unnecessary sail handling for a shorthanded crew. The aspect ratio of both the fore triangle and the mainsail is chosen to give maximum performance for a given sail area.

CONSTRUCTION of the hull consists of GRP with a ¾" Klegecell core. The inside and outside shell have a minimum thickness of ¼" solid fiberglass each in the bottom and slightly less in the topsides. The interior bulkheads are glassed in and form part of the total structure. The keel area, maststep, chainplates and engine beds are made with special steel structure to increase strength and stiffness of those highly loaded areas."—Johan Valentijn.

Good tracking is provided by a moderately deep draft keel with separate spade rudder hung from a partial skeg. The hull employs a fine entry with moderate flair and freeboard for easy motion and dry decks in a Seaway. Optional Spinnaker and staysail systems will set her moderate displacement into a swift motion.

Belowdecks, the tri-cabin layout boasts extensive use of teak and exceptional joiner work with chart compartments beneath the navigator's desk, double access to the forward head, sixteen opening ports with screens and five opening hatches overhead. Both port and starboard settees can be extended to make double berths. The U-shaped galley is offset from the main salon and out of the way of companionway traffic. Off the full headroom walkthrough passageway to starboard is a hanging locker and workbench with stowage underneath. Large doors provide access to the engine room.

Builder's Comment

The Intrepid 40 is a "live aboard," fast passagemaker built by the New England Craftsmen at Cape Dory Yachts. She's available in a center cockpit or aft cockpit model. The center cockpit model has a tri-cabin layout with a second, private head in the master stateroom.

The Intrepid 40 offers remarkable live-aboard spaciousness plus outstanding speed and performance.

According to Andrew C. Vavoulis, president of Intrepid Yachts, "Her underbody features external lead ballast, a long fin keel and skeg mounted rudder. In keeping with the quest for optimum performance, Paine designed the Intrepid 40 with a tall, powerful sloop rig. With her large self-tailing primary and mainsheet winches, plus an optional head sail seafurl, even the short-handed crew will find her easy to sail."

Big Ideas for New, Small Diesels

By DAN FALES

It's been the dream of many boatowners to have small diesel engines purring effortlessly below. They have wanted engines that are reliable, easy to maintain, economical to run and as quiet and vibration-free as a motor car. To get such engines, Volvo-Penta went to the engineers and simply asked for breakthrough designs. The boys at the boards in the back came up with not one but three. They designed two- and three-cylinder engines that produce 18 and 28 horsepower, respectively. They shortened, lightened, narrowed and lowered the engines to fit into more hulls. At the same time, they located all the servicing points at the front of the engine for easy maintenance. And finally, they designed a new V-drive transmission to solve a problem uniquely American. Volvo has taken these advances and packed them under the banner "Series 2000."

Now owners of powerboats from 21 to 27 feet can have diesels below, as can owners of sailboats from 24 to 35 feet. With the advent of the sailboat drive system in the United States, some owners have been plagued with electrolysis. A requirement by the American Boat And Yacht Council seems to be at the heart of the problem. The ABYC asks that boats have complete bonding systems, including the electrical connection of aluminum drive units to metals of other nobility. Now, Volvo will de-emphasize the S-drive with its aluminum lower unit in favor of the newly-designed inboard V-drive system.

But regardless of transmission—straight reverse drive, V-drive or S-drive—it's the performance of the Series 2000 diesels that counts. In an 18.4-foot runabout with a single two-cylinder diesel, the 1,708.5-pound boat (plus two crew) topped out at 14.1 mph at 3100 rpm. The transmission was a straight forward 3:1 reverse-gear drive.

A heavier 19.7-foot workboat with a single three-cylinder engine hit 13.7 mph at 3180 rpm. The 2,425-pound boat had the additional weight of two crew, and was equipped with a 17x18x3 propeller. A 31.2-foot sailboat using S-drive and the two-cylinder diesel reached 8.05 mph.

The Series 2000 engines are of the direct fuel-injection type. Both the two- and three-cylinder models are fitted with electric start and manual start as standard. The manual start is not an arm-breaker because a decompression valve can be opened should this start technique be necessary. These engines have a 12-volt electrical system with an alternator

BOSTON WHALER

Inside every Formula beats a racing heart.

When you learn something the hard way, you never forget it. That's how we learned to build performance boats. In the hardest, most demanding of all laboratories—the international racing circuit.

Formula boats have been winning major bluewater races since the mid '60s, and we've learned that performance means a lot more than just brute power. You need effortless handling, rock-solid stability, and above all, total safety to compete. A Formula is engineered to perform, in every sense of the word.

Sure, we build boats that go fast. We also build them safe enough for kids, comfortable enough for landlubbers and solid enough for Mother Nature at her worst.

And while you may never have the opportunity (or the inclination) to open the throttle all the way in a six-foot chop, it's good to know that you're in command of a boat that could do it. And win.

Design Board

• 101′ JANNACE MOTORYACHT—This aluminum-hulled yacht design was submitted to Fujishin Shipbuilding as a fast cruiser by C.J. Jannace, who says, "The Japanese are in the process of jumping into the large boat market with both feet. Since I can't stop them, I figured I had better join them." To attain the projected 22-knot speed (cruising half-loaded), the hull, superstructure, decks, tanks, bulkheads and foundations are welded aluminum. Three 1200-hp Stewart and Stevenson 16V-92MTI diesels will drive the props, which are located in a stern platform stepped out from the hull. The owner's stateroom takes full advantage of the 23-foot beam to occupy the belowdecks area forward of the centerline: aft, the two guest cabins to port and one to starboard each have twin beds and full shower/heads. The captain and four crewmen have three separate cabins forward. The main deck is fully committed to conspicuous consumption: an aft saloon with three settees, dining room and bar, galley, pilothouse and study with a bow's-eye view. C.J. Jannace, Dept. MB&S, 3330 State Rd. 218, Middleburg, FL 32068, 904-282-9592.

WINNING

Records are made to be broken, and some Johnson outboards are made to break records. Our Johnson V-8 racing machines, for example.

A Johnson V-8 powered Rick Frost to his single outboard world record speed run of 144.16 mph at Lake Windermere, England. It was the average of runs of 146.2 and 142.1 mph over the 1 km course.

And Johnson V-8 outboards have been dominating the prestigious Formula 1 boat race circuit around the world.

Recently, in Houston, a 30-ft. hull powered by four Johnson V-8s enabled driver Jimbo McConnell to compete successfully in the first APBA Unlimited race in which outboards were allowed. He took second place, averaging 99.282 mph.

At Johnson we race to win. But we race to learn, too. The heat of competition helps us develop better performing outboards for fishing, skiing and cruising.

And now Johnson offers two production, competition-class V-6 outboards. The 2.6 GT is designed for high performance hulls, and the GT 150 for tournament bass boats. Both have powerhead and lower unit features right out of the race/prep handbook.

When Johnson wins in competition, you're the one who gets the trophy.

For your local Johnson dealer's name, call 800-447-2882.

IF YOU CAN'T BEAT US, JOIN US.

Wellcraft's performance boats have established a spectacular record in international offshore races. So, if you're going to pay significant dollars for a boat, why not get a champion?

Walk through our Shipping Department and look at the tags on the new Scarabs. Capri. New York. St. Thomas. Malibu. Rio. Miami. Costa Smeralda. The fact is, over the past few years, Wellcraft has become the world's most desired name in high-quality performance boats.

And the incredible Scarab III, pictured, is one reason why.

With twin I/O options up to 525 hp each, this 34-footer will really move you. In practically any weather. In practically any seas. And in awesome luxury. Soft velour. Deep carpeting. Mirrors and chrome.

But there's more to our performance line than Scarabs. We make the very popular Novas, and this year we are introducing Excaliburs to give you the best possible choice of performance boats from 21 to 50 feet.

For information about our line of performance boats, fishermen, cruisers, runabouts, Californian motor yachts or Starwind® sailboats, see your Wellcraft Dealer (for the nearest one, call 800-447-4700). Or write Wellcraft Marine, 8151 Bradenton Road, Sarasota, FL 33580. An Aegis corporation.

PUT SOME ISLAND ADVENTURE IN YOUR RETIREMENT.

If you love boating, then you're going to love retiring to Hilton Head Plantation on Hilton Head Island. Here you'll find easy access to the Atlantic Ocean and nearby fishing reefs. Quiet rivers and tidewater creeks where you can cast for spot tail bass and speckled trout. Breezy sounds for sailing. And everything from the ocean to lagoons where you can enjoy relaxing afternoons of pleasure boating and sailing.

What's more, at Hilton Head, you'll find a full dock, boat storage facilities and a gourmet restaurant at Skull Creek Marina on the Intracoastal Waterway. So whether you want to be on the water for a few hours, a weekend, or a month or more, Hilton Head Plantation is an ideal home port.

You'll also be interested to know that The Plantation offers year round golf. Tennis on eight clay courts. Riding stables.† And miles of the most scenic beaches you'll find anywhere.

But Hilton Head Plantation is more than a place to play.

It's a place to live. We offer residential homes and waterfront condominiums architecturally designed to blend in perfect harmony with the seaside landscape of live oak, pine and grassy dunes.

You get all this at surprisingly affordable prices. With homes beginning at $105,000 including land. Lot mortgages available at interest rates below prevailing rates. Condominium prices from $150,000.

For more information about Hilton Head Plantation on Hilton Head Island, fill in the coupon. Or call (803) 785-3300 and make arrangements for a visit at $50 per night for the two of you. Retire to Hilton Head Plantation. And discover what a beautiful adventure your retirement can be.
